THINGS TO KNOW

A.D. AMOROSI, FEATURES REPORTER

I knew that the Miss America pageant came with the feel of the sexist and the antiquated, and that a change toward realness and relevance was necessary. In speaking to passionate pageant people, I found that they too welcomed change in leadership. What they weren't expecting was for its traditions to be completely discarded. As so many women have used the positive platform of the pageant for good, changing several of its most distinct aspects seems to be a push too far in one direction. Read more inside and on metro.us.

WELCOME TO
METRO.USFLU-LIKE SYMPTOMS
AFFECT 2 PHILLY FLIGHTS

Passengers and crew on two flights arriving in Philadelphia from Europe on Thursday were screened by medical teams after 12 people aboard became ill with flu-like symptoms, a day after a similar outbreak on a flight from Dubai to New York. All 250 people on separate American Airlines flights from Munich and Paris were "held for a medical review" as a precaution, and the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) was notified, airport spokeswoman Diane Gerace said. Both of the flights had arrived at Philadelphia International Airport on Thursday afternoon, she said. CDC worked with Philadelphia health officers, emergency responders and Customs and Border Patrol agents to evaluate the passengers who reported feeling sick for influenza and other respiratory illnesses, CDC spokesman Benjamin Haynes said. "Twelve passengers from the two flights reported sore throat and cough, none were identified with fever. None of the passengers are severely ill, and they will be released and informed of test results in 24 hours," Haynes said.

GUNMAN KILLS 3, THEN IS SHOT DEAD IN CINCINNATI

A gunman dressed in a business suit opened fire inside a bank in downtown Cincinnati early on Thursday, killing three people and wounding others before being shot and killed by police, authorities said. The shooter began firing inside a loading dock at the Fifth Third Bank headquarters near Fountain Square, police said. He then entered the lobby, where he exchanged fire with law enforcement. "He was actively shooting innocent victims, it appears, and our officers were able to kill him and stop the threat very quickly,"

Cincinnati Mayor John Cranley told a news conference. The city's police chief, Eliot Isaac, said the suspect was Omar Enrique Santa Perez, 29, of North Bend, Ohio, a Cincinnati suburb. He said the shooter, who fired a 9-millimeter semi-automatic pistol during the incident, was not a former or current employee of the bank. Investigators have not identified a motive for the shootings, Isaac said. A search was conducted of his apartment, he said. Santa Perez had about 200 rounds of ammunition with him during the shootings, Isaac said.

CARLSBERG MAKES WAVES TO REDUCE PLASTIC WASTE

TOP AIDES SCURRY TO DISAVOW NY TIMES OP-ED

Senior aides to Donald Trump scrambled on Thursday to disown a New York Times column written by an unnamed administration official that slammed the leadership style of the U.S. president as impetuous, petty and ineffective. As Trump flew to Billings, Mo., for a rally where he was likely to rip into the article, more of his top advisers joined the crowd denying any responsibility for its authorship. The unsigned column drew disavowals from at least 11 advisers to Trump, including Vice President Mike Pence, Ambassador to Russia Jon Huntsman, Secretary of State Mike Pompeo and Defense Secretary James Mattis. Trump seethed about the piece and framed it as a jab from critics in denial about his successes, while Washington was consumed with speculation about who wrote the opinion piece. First Lady Melania Trump said in a statement on Twitter: "To the writer of the op-ed - you are not protecting this country, you are sabotaging it with your cowardly actions." Published on Wednesday, the column appeared days after the release of excerpts from a book by famed reporter Bob Woodward.

CBS BOARD IN EXIT NEGOTIATIONS WITH MOONVES

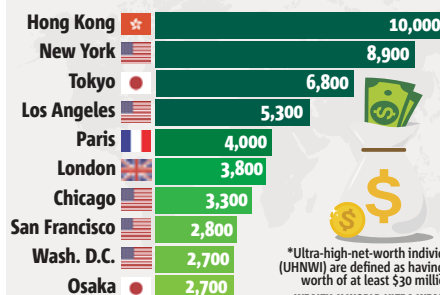

Media company CBS Corp's board is in settlement talks with Chief Executive Officer Les Moonves to negotiate his exit, a source familiar with the matter said on Thursday. These discussions are tied to the settlement talks over the control of CBS between the company, Shari Redstone and majority shareholder National Amusements Inc, the source said. The board has offered a roughly $100 million exit package, CNBC reported earlier on Thursday, citing people familiar with the negotiations.

The number could not be independently verified. A New Yorker report in late July featured claims against Moonves from six women spanning different time periods over two decades, from 1985 to 2006. The allegations included sexual assault and unwanted advances. The board has asked for autonomy from its controlling shareholder, according to a Wall Street Journal report on Thursday. If granted, CBS could be free to pursue a sale. CBS shares were up more than 3 percent.

Attorney general subpoenas NY Roman Catholic dioceses

Church officials have shared that they plan to cooperate with the investigation.

SARAH LUOMA
letters@metro.us

New York Attorney General Barbara Underwood served subpoenas to all New York Roman Catholic dioceses on Thursday, according to a law enforcement source close to the investigation that spoke with The Associated Press.

The subpoenas were issued to eight Roman Catholic dioceses located in the state of New York. Underwood and her office are conducting their own independent civil investigation into how the church has handled both past and present reports of sexual abuse.

Underwood's actions come on the heels of the recent scandal, made public three weeks ago, that involved a grand jury investigation into clergy in the state of Pennsylvania. The investigation uncovered the sexual abuse of more than 1,000 children by roughly 300 priests that was covered up by the church.

Some of those priests accused of sexual abuse have ties to both New York and New Jersey.

Underwood's subpoena requests that all eight New York Roman Catholic dioceses turn over any documentation related to sexual abuse allegations and share any financial payments made to victims as well as findings from internal church investigations.

The church has shared that they plan to cooperate but have declined to comment to media outlets in regards to the civil investigation.

After Underwood sent subpoenas to the NY Roman Catholic dioceses, the attorney general also announced a clergy abuse hotline and online complaint form for victims or anyone with knowledge of abuse.

Following Underwood's subpoenas served on Thursday, the state of New Jersey and Attorney General Gurbir Grewal also followed suit, announcing plans for a criminal task force that will also investigate sexual abuse and allegations by the Roman Catholic dioceses.

"I was deeply troubled to read the allegations contained in last month's Pennsylvania grand jury report," Grewal shared.

New Jersey has also put in place a hotline and an online form for victims of sexual abuse or anyone with information.

The mess of 'Miss America'

An internal battle is brewing over the new "competition" and new chairwoman Gretchen Carlson.

A.D. AMOROSI
letters@metro.us

tions with longtime Miss America insiders and fresh information gathered from the VoyForum pageant trade message board, the competition is being zealously browbeaten into submission according to Carlson's self-righteous whims. "They want to be beautiful and not just show off talents and political concerns," said one source. (Two individuals familiar with the Miss America organization's history interviewed for this piece declined to be identified due to job concerns.)

Reports from the prelims, from expert witnesses who were once hopeful in regard to Carlson's potentially fair, empowering and pro-woman stance, now believe that the new chairwoman has hijacked the pageant for her own glory ("We're expecting a long on-air speech from her ... mentioning she went to Stanford U, and claiming to have started the #MeToo movement") and that perhaps she just wanted her own pageant "without doing all the work," claimed the source.

Another enraged, off-the-record insider asked, "If she really wanted to empower the 51 girls who are competing, why not poll them and ask them if they wanted to do swimsuit?"

Karl Nilsson, spokesman for the Miss America Organization, dismissed these sources' opinions.

"Journalism is not the anonymous rantings from naysayers lifted from message boards and reprinted as fact. This has slowly turned into a circus sideshow," Nilsson responded via email. "You're asking for comment simply to incite a reaction and to give legitimacy to these disgruntled voices who choose to hide in the dark. These attempts only perpetuate the spreading of more lies, untruths, and gossip. The focus is 51 amazing women who are here to compete to be crowned the next Miss America. How nice it would be if everyone else shared that same vision."

When Sunday night's "Miss America 2019" pageant unfurls, live from Atlantic City's Boardwalk Hall, it's going to be a far messier affair than it started out as 98 years ago. It's not even really going to be called a "pageant" anymore, but rather a "competition."

Wednesday's first night of preliminaries in this new, swimsuit-less, evening-gown-less Miss America competition resembled a reconstituted #MeToo-conscious pageant shaped by the circumstance of its recently-elected chairwoman, Gretchen Carlson.

Though first known for being crowned Miss America in 1989, and for a hosting run on Fox News, Carlson shot to activist fame when, in 2016, her contract expired from Fox News and she filed a lawsuit against then-Fox News CEO and chairman Roger Ailes claiming sexual harassment. Fox News parent 21st Century Fox Corporation settled the lawsuit for $20 million, and Carlson went on to become an early face of the #MeToo movement.

Those two worlds collided when one-time pageant chairman Sam Haskell resigned in December 2017 after making disparaging, sexist remarks by email about former Miss Americas and Carlson was crowned again, this time as the pageant's boss.

But there is an overall feeling that anointing her as Miss America's chairwoman was a bad move. And not just because Carlson supposedly bullied and mentally abused the current titleholder, Cara Mund. (In an open letter, Mund claimed organization leaders bullied and "silenced" her.)

Hollywood icon Burt Reynolds dies at 82

Burt Reynolds, whose good looks and charm made him one of Hollywood's most popular actors as he starred in films such as "Deliverance," "The Longest Yard" and "Smokey and the Bandit" in the 1970s and '80s, died on Thursday at the age of 82, The Hollywood Reporter said, citing his manager.

At the peak of his career, Reynolds was one of the most bankable actors in the film industry, reeling off a series of box-office smashes until a career downturn in the mid-1980s. He rebounded in 1997 with a nomination for a Best Supporting Actor Academy Award for "Boogie Nights" and won an Emmy Award for his role in the 1990-1994 TV bearskin rug with his arm strategically positioned for the sake of modesty — in a centerfold in the women's magazine Cosmopolitan in 1972.

Reynolds' personal life sometimes overshadowed his movies, with marriages that ended in divorce to actresses Loni Anderson and Judy Carne and romances with others, including Sally Field and Dinah Shore. Reynolds also generated attention for financial woes and his struggles with prescription pain medication.

Reynolds cited director John Boorman's Oscar-nominated 1972 "Deliverance" as his best film and said he regretted that the hoopla from his Cosmopolitan appearance detracted from the movie that made him a star. He played tough-guy Lewis Medlock — opposite Jon Voight, Ned Beatty and Ronny Cox — in the chilling tale of a canoe trip gone bad in rural Georgia.

He starred in dozens of films, including "White Lightning" (1973), "W.W. and the Dixie Dancekings" (1975), "Hustle" (1975), "Nickelodeon" (1976) and "Semi-Tough" (1977). He was the top money-making star at the box office from 1978 through 1982.

With his trademark mustache, rugged looks and macho aura, he was a leading male sex symbol of the 1970s. He appeared naked — reclining on a series "Evening Shade." Many of his films were set in the South. He often played a lovable rascal who outwits local authorities, as in director Hal

@markwahlberg
"Rest in peace to a legend and a friend. #BurtReynolds"

Needham's 1977 crowd-pleasing action comedy "Smokey and the Bandit," co-starring his girlfriend Field and Jackie Gleason, and its two sequels.

Another of his better roles was that of a former pro quarterback who lands in prison and assembles a team of convicts to play the warden's squad of brutal prison guards in 1974's rollicking "The Longest Yard," directed by Robert Aldrich. He appeared in a supporting role of 2005's remake with Adam Sandler.

Reynolds also directed several movies in which he starred, including "Gator" (1976), "The End" (1978), "Sharky's Machine" (1981) and "Stick" (1985).

While some of his performances were critically praised, others were ridiculed, particularly in the bloated action comedy "Cannonball Run II," a sequel to his financial success "The Cannonball Run" (1981). He also starred in the notorious 1975 musical flop "At Long Last Love," a film so atrocious that director Peter Bogdanovich publicly apologized for making it.

Doctors Urge Knee Pain Sufferers

“Don’t Get ANY Surgery Until You See This...”

After Years Of Intense Study, NYC Medical Clinic Finally Reveals It’s Best “Treatment Formula” For Helping Knee Arthritis Sufferers... Especially When So Many Other Treatments Have Failed

NEW YORK CITY - If you are even remotely interested in discovering how the latest scientific discoveries can possibly help your knee pain... then this is going to be the most exciting information you ever read.

Here is why: Knee pain can not only be brutal... it’s complex. In other words, it’s not a simple, easy fix.

But I’m sure you already know that. Or you wouldn’t be reading this.

That’s the bad news.

Now for some good news...

Over the years, NYC Pain MD has treated countless knee pain sufferers. And in that time have been able to constantly improve.

And we have come up with a treatment formula that we have found works best and helps the most patients.

This formula has reduced or even eliminated the pain in many. Some were scheduled for knee replacement surgery and felt good enough to cancel their surgery.

It’s amazing when patients who were once in excruciating pain... start feeling better. And start walking again. And playing golf. Or tennis. And finally getting their lives back.

Especially when they had gone to other doctors and tried so many other things.

So many had given up hope.

Sound familiar? If it does... check this out...

The Treatment Formula

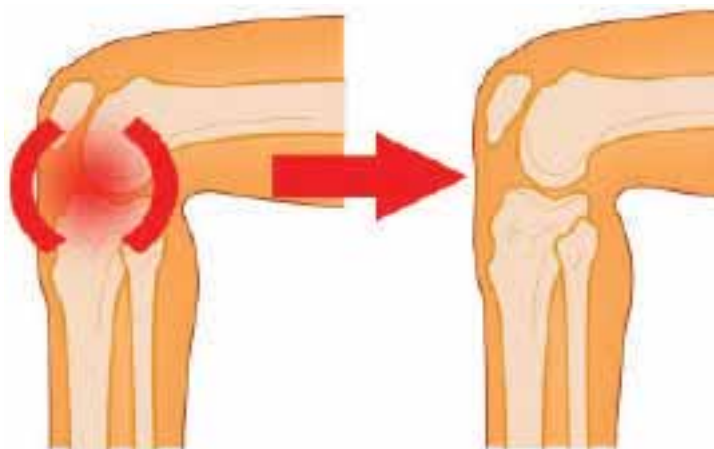

While I can’t give you the entire treatment formula here (there is not enough space and WAY too complicated) I can give you the basics. And more important... I can tell you what it might be able to do for YOU.

The first and most important part of the formula is: PATIENT SELECTION.

This means, NYC Pain MD has a detailed screening process to tell who is most likely to be helped by their treatments... and who is not.

If you qualify, you have the opportunity to move forward and experience the worldclass treatments that NYC Pain MD offers.

If you do not, NYC Pain MD will tell you what they think your best options are and help

NYC Pain MD “Treatment Formula” A protocol of advanced medical treatments that has already helped thousands.

you find the right doctor for you.

If you qualify, NYC Pain MD offers some of the most advanced medical treatments available today all using the most advanced imaging technology including:

- Viscosupplementation (gel injections)
- Platelet Rich Plasma (PRP)
- Stem Cell Therapy (Lipogems)
- Genicular Knee Block
- And more.

Once again, there is not enough space to go into detail about all these procedures... but here are some things you MUST KNOW...

Viscosupplementation is where a doctor introduces a gel-like medicine directly into the joint space. This helps to lubricate the joints often relieving some, most or even all of your pain. Results can last for 6 months to several years.

Many have had these treatments without good results. However, NYC Pain MD feels this is because doctors often do these “gel injections” without advanced imaging to guide them. Research shows they will often miss the joint. If the joint is missed... it is impossible for the treatment to work.

NYC Pain MD has spared no expense and used advanced imaging to guide the injections assuring the medicine gets into the joint. We frequently get results when this treatment was a failure done elsewhere.

The second thing you must know is... our treatment plans are custom made for every patient. And we have all these treatments offered in the same place. Many times you will get the best results from multiple treatments. At NYC Pain MD your doctors will all be there and will all know each other and you and your case. They work together and give you the best treatments and care without you having to go anywhere else.

The ability to select the right patients and then have the potential to give them any or all of these treatments... with all the necessary medical technology... under one roof... has allowed NYC Pain MD to get better results than they thought possible.

Here’s What You Should Do Next

If you suffer with knee pain... and any of this made sense to you... NYC Pain MD would like to offer you a No-cost screening. That screening is the first step in our “Treatment Formula.”

You will get to see a doctor and ask any questions you have. Your doctor will take the first steps to see if you qualify for treatments and give you recommendations.

The best thing is... you will finally get direction. You will know what’s going on and what is your best course of action... step-by-step. The treatments will be explained in detail and you will breathe a big sigh of relief finally knowing what’s going on and what can or cannot be done.

There is so much we want to say to help you... but I’m out of space. Give us a call at 877-296-6310 and take the first step. That step is free without obligation.

Who wouldn't want to blow off steam from adulting in NYC to play nostalgic arcade games or hang out in your very own on-site treehouse?

NIKKI M. MASCALI
nikki.mascali@metro.us

With work, bills, commuting and myriad other everyday hurdles, adulting in the city can be exhausting. But thanks to a growing retro-amenities trend, residents in some NYC apartment buildings are recapturing childhood in some very unique ways.

For example, 555TEN in Hell's Kitchen offers residents a game room with nostalgic arcade favorites like Pac-Man and pinball, as well as a bowling alley, while House39 in Murray Hill offers Skee-Ball. Residents can try their hand at bocce ball on the rooftop of EVGB in the East Village or play shuffleboard at 363 Bond Street in Gowanus.

"Our outdoor spaces provide a backyard setting for relaxing and also get-togethers among neighbors, where there are lawn games like ping-pong, foosball, a bocce ball court and hopscotch," said Marisa Moraes of Harrison Urby in Harrison, a suburb of Newark, which also provides beanbag chairs on the grass in summer.

One Manhattan Square on the Lower East Side has a putting green, fire pits and one of the more unique amenities in an NYC apartment building: an adult treehouse, "in the middle of their park space that has Wi-Fi and is fully furnished," said Anna Zarro of developer Extell.

The treehouse came about after Extell, which also developed 555TEN, EVGB and several other NYC apartment buildings, started to see more and more residents working from home or having flexible and creative work hours.

"How great would it be to sit outside on a nice day in an enclosed treehouse with internet and furniture?" Zarro said. "Maybe that's where you're working when you work from home."

The driving factor for Extell is "someone living in their home and extending their home outside the four walls they have and into the rest of the building," Zarro added.

Access to retro features in NYC apartment buildings are typically covered under an amenity membership fee.

FASHION
WEEK

The former "Project Runway" winner has been a champion for fashion inclusivity.

Christian Siriano on NYFW, fashion inclusivity and Cynthia Nixon

The popular designer returns for his 10th New York Fashion Week this weekend.

MATT JUUL
matthewjuul@metro.us

Even after all these years, preparing for New York Fashion Week hasn't become any less stressful for Christian Siriano.

"You would think it would get easier, and some things get easier, but some things get harder," the popular designer and former "Project Runway" winner tells Metro ahead of his return to the show on Sept. 8. "It's quite a bit of pressure, but it's good. It's exciting. It keeps you on your toes."

Siriano has been a staple at New York Fashion Week since he debuted his eponymous line here in 2008. He recently celebrated the 10th anniversary of the Christian Siriano line at February's installment of the festivities, with a show featuring the likes Ashley Graham, Selma Blair and Danielle Brooks.

As an advocate for fashion inclusivity and a fan-favorite designer among red carpet regulars like Michelle Obama, Lady Gaga, Leslie Jones, Taylor Swift and so many more, Siriano has become a force in the industry. According to The Cut, his label is projected to be worth $20 million by the end of the year, which isn't a surprise considering that the 32-year-old revealed over the summer that he tripled his business after adding plus sizes.

Siriano hopes that the rest of the fashion world will join him in embracing a more inclusive mindset, which he believes doesn't have to come at the cost of fashion.

Even for an NYFW vet like Christian Siriano, showing his collection at the event is always stressful.

ion's aspirational side.

"Fashion can still be aspirational, but it can be aspirational as well as being an inclusive thing," he says. "That's what I try to do. I try to just go with it and do what we think is right."

Ahead, Siriano opens up about New York Fashion Week, the legacy he hopes to leave on the industry and why he finds Cynthia Nixon so inspiring.

What's your favorite part about New York Fashion Week?

For us and my team, we work on the same collection for so long. It can kind of get stagnant. It's nice to put on this show because you're presenting to the world. It feels good to get it out there.

Do you ever get to be just a fan and check out other designers, or is it all business?

No, never [laughs]. There's a few cool parties with magazines and things like that that I try to go to. But other than that, you're really working on your craft. You have to be really in it because you have to make sure it's great.

Where did you draw inspiration from leading into your latest collection?

The collection obviously has an inspiration that comes from some place. But, I think what's nice and the reason why I still show in New York, I really show here for the women here, the women of New York. That powerful, important, confident person we really love. It's really nice to still have them. We just opened a beautiful new store here. We like to have the customer involved. We invite the customer to the show. It's a whole thing. I think that's why it's still very exciting for me to do that every season.

You've been such an advocate for fashion inclusivity, but there's still a lot of pushback against plus sizes in some parts of the industry. What still needs to be done in order for others to adopt this mindset?

You just have to really be on board and get it out of your head that it even is a thing. We kind of don't even think about it. We just like to put all these different types of beautiful people in the show because we think they're great and special and beautiful. We just don't think about it that much. That's what every brand needs to get on board. It doesn't need to be a mission. It doesn't need to be a project. It can just be what it is, because that's how the customer is. She's just coming in your store randomly or wherever she's shopping. That's the biggest goal here, to make it a normal thing. Hopefully we see all these different types of people wearing different types of clothes.

Fashion Week coincides with New York's primary election on Sept. 13, and you've voiced support for Cynthia Nixon. Why do you find her so inspiring?

New York City is filled with so many different types of people. We have literally every type of culture and people from all around the world, different countries. I think she's just such an advocate for that, which I think is really amazing. She's a very real New Yorker, which is really nice to see. Obviously she was an actress and all the other things, but people forget she was born and raised in New York, [has] lived here her whole life. I don't know. She was just very inspiring to me [after] listening to her speak. She's also just so knowledgeable, she knows so much, that I was left very impressed. That, I think, for me, is why I definitely support her. And I think it would be just a nice change. Sometimes change can be bad, sometimes change can be really amazing. I think she would be an amazing change, not a scary one.

What kind of legacy do you hope to leave in the world of fashion?

If I was out of business tomorrow, I would feel really proud that we could leave behind this idea that we really celebrated women and celebrated this idea of beauty. Women like Michelle Obama probably wouldn't have picked my dress if I wasn't doing that. I think that is very important to think about. And I'm proud that we've been doing it from the beginning, dressing women of different shapes, different sizes and different colors.

Some were into the idea...
LET DOGS INTO BARS!
I would rather drink with my dog than some of the patrons. My dog is a "food hound," so as long as there is no food around we would be fine. She might do her donut dance for attention but that would be the worst-case scenario.

— Meg Hall, Metro US reader

the GRUMBLE

Others were not so into it...
NO. DOGS SHOULD NOT BE ALLOWED IN BARS!
Why do people who own dogs assume that EVERYONE loves them? Unless it is a service dog, I personally don't want to see dogs on a plane, or in a restaurant or bar. People have allergies, and some folks have fears and phobias. No matter how "trained" a dog is, it can be triggered when in a new environment and potentially cause a major problem, especially if there is more than one canine in a public place. Don't get me wrong, I like dogs, but it's a pet — not a child or a companion. Well, maybe for some. There are dog parks all over the city... take your dog there, not to a public place designed for humans to enjoy themselves.

Of course, I am responding to the Grumble in the Sept. 6 Metro. There is no "war" against dogs. They are animals and not EVERYONE thinks they are cute enough to hang out with their owners in all public places. Next thing you know, people will have their dogs in the club or in church. Might as well let them come to the gym and work out also.

Aries Take good care of your health. Avoid getting involved with anyone who is a bad influence or is negative and aggressive. Surround yourself with people who share your opinions.

Taurus If you want to make a change, put your plans in motion. A job opportunity looks promising and should be dealt with before you move on to social activities.

Gemini Share the love with those who bring you joy. Arrange to host a gathering at your place or spend time fixing up your space to accommodate future projects.

Cancer Try something unique. Showing interest in someone else's activities will give you an idea for things you can do in your life that will make you feel content and at ease.

Leo Don't pick a fight or get involved with people who want to change you or coax you into something that isn't good for you. Aim to stabilize your life instead of disrupting it.

Virgo Plan to attend a social event, take a trip or get involved in activities that involve physical activity or children. The people and places you encounter will enrich your life.

Libra Make suggestions, but don't offer to do too much for others. You'll be taken advantage of if you are overly accommodating or don't know when or how to say no.

Scorpio Settle into a routine. The more structured your life is, the better. If you give in to someone's emotional whims, you will end up having little time to take care of your needs.

Sagittarius Stick close to home and protect your assets, possessions and a relationship with a loved one. Someone trying to meddle in your affairs will give you the wrong impression.

Capricorn You can take the world by storm. Stand tall and put your plans in motion. A moneymaking deal looks promising and will bring about positive change to your standard of living.

Aquarius Look for an investment that will help you expand your plans. A partnership will hold you back. Do your own thing.

Pisces Taking care of business before moving on to pleasurable pastimes will leave a good impression on someone who can be beneficial to you in the future.

'The Nun' director on shooting in Transylvania, the 'heartland' of horror

Corin Hardy insists that doing so allowed him to tap into the mythology of the genre.

GREGORY WAKEMAN
Gregory.Wakeman@metro.us

Everything about "The Nun" feels unsettling.

Of course, the fact that it is the fifth installment in "The Conjuring" universe means that moviegoers expect, even demand, to be terrified by Taissa Farmiga's novice nun and Damian Bichir's Father Burke as they explore the supernatural goings on in a Romanian Monastery in 1952. But "The Nun"'s posters, and especially its trailer, have teased it as a horror film that will burrow its way into your subconscious.

It turns out that there's an integral reason why "The Nun" feels authentically terrifying, too. During a recent discussion with director Corin Hardy, he revealed that they shot the film in Transylvania, a place he calls the "heartland" of horror.

"My first film, "The

Corin Hardy

Hallow,' w a s written and made around Irish folklore," says Hardy. "I was pleased to be able to go to the heart of Irish mythology and shoot in Ireland. So I am two-for-two with 'The Nun' being set in Romania.

"We were able to actually go to Romania. We were based in Bucharest for the studio part," he adds. "But we scouted and found the right type of gothic castle for our main location, and for the convents and cemeteries up north in Transylvania. So it was very fitting to do the film in the heartland of Dracula."

Just to make sure that the press were suitably terrified, New Line and Warner Bros. also decided to hold the first junket in a "400-year-old convent in the mountains of Mexico City." But while Hardy clearly believes that shooting in such a creepy and disturbing location aided "The Nun," he insists that the script already had all the ingredients to create a "classic, old school, gothic horror movie."

"As a fan of horror generally, and having grown up through the ages of horror, and as a child growing up loving Hammer horror, gothic horror and Dracula, to get sent the script for 'The Nun,' which was written by Gary Dauberman and James Wan, the story was on the page," says Hardy. "It sort of steadily dawned on me as I was reading the script and then as I was making the movie that what we were making was a classic old school gothic horror movie, and we were shooting it in Transylvania. It is quite rare in this day and age to get those elements."

Hardy only had a short window of time to appreciate these circumstances, because after landing the job of directing "The Nun" he was put to work almost immediately.

"It was quite a roller-coaster because when I got sent the script I read it immediately and was really excited to feel that this was something that I could really apply myself to," he says. "After meeting with the producers I pretty much got the job the next day. Then we rapidly went in pre-production and production. Especially since I flew straight to Romania to scout, prep and then shoot 10 or 12 weeks later. So we had to hit the ground running."

"But James Wan and his Atomic Monsters company, New Line, Warner Bros. ... they're all such a tight-knit group because they have done so many of these movies," Hardy adds. "New Line has such a good reputation with the horror genre, having done 'Nightmare On Elm Street' and then onwards. It was like joining a family."

"The Nun" is now in theaters.

Everything you need to know about Pitchfork's OctFest 2018

The two-day music, beer, and food festival will take over Governors Island next month.

PAT KING
patrick.king@metro.us

Is there a better or more iconic summer trio than beer, food and music? Maybe "pool-side, chaise lounge, fast asleep" comes in at a close second. But that's besides the point. The know-it-all music taste-makers at Pitchfork, along with October, a "leading beer culture website," will be hosting the second annual OctFest in New York City this weekend, Saturday, with two days of music, food vendors and more than 90 different breweries providing sample sizes of some of their best beers.

Wilco's Jeff Tweedy

Last year's inaugural festival took place over one day in Brooklyn's Industry City, but this year will pack in two full days on Governors Island. Here is everything you need to know about Pitchfork's OctFest 2018.

Dates

The festival is this weekend, Saturday, Sept. 8 to Sunday, Sept. 9. Just make sure to take it a little easy on those beer samples Sunday night, before heading to work Monday morning.

Lineup

While the inaugural festival put on a one-day lineup full of some serious indie-rock heavyweights like Guided By Voices, Built to Spill and Okkervil River, this year the festival has expanded to include amazing artists across two days. Friday night will be headlined by rapper Vince Staples, with the newest addition to the festival's lineup, Wilco's Jeff Tweedy, earleir in the day. Sunday's lineup will have The Flaming Lips closing out the festival, but not before Nile Rodgers & CHiC, Yo La Tengo, and many more take the stage.

Food

The food at this year's festival is no joke. Some of the best restaurants and food trucks in the city will be offering samples of their menus as well as creating imaginative food and beer pairings with some of the featured breweries. Vendors will include:

The Flaming Lips will be closing out this year's OctFest.

Mission Chinese, Island Oyster, Kronnerburger, Cervo's, Colonia Verde, Best Pizza, Roberta's, Lil' Sweet Chick, Odd Fellows, Hank's Juicy Beef, Stuf'd, and Los Viajeros.

OctFest 2018 — Saturday Lineup

Vince Staples, Jeff Tweedy, NAO, Saba, Preoccupations, Vagabon, Standing on the Corner, Hatchie, Flasher, and Madison McFerrin

OctFest 2018 — Sunday Lineup

The Flaming Lips, Nile Rodgers & CHiC, Yo La Tengo, Girlpool, Hop Along, No Age, Kamayah, Shopping, Julie Byrne, and The Courtney's

How to get there

Whether you view it as a setback or as an amazing perk to this festival is up to you, but the only way to get to Governors Island is by ferry. Luckily, ferry service is included with price of admission, so you won't have to scramble at the end of the night to get a spot onboard.

Are tickets still available?

Tickets are still available for the festival. Single-day tickets run $75 and two-day tickets are priced at $140. Each single-day ticket holder can choose up to 15 3oz. pours from any of the breweries at the festival.

If you choose to go for the two-day pass, you will receive 30 samples for the weekend (limit of 15 per day). Concertgoers will be able to purchase more for $1.50 per 3oz. pour. Sampling hours at the festival will be 2 p.m.-8 p.m. each day.

For ticket information, head over to eventbrite.com/e/octfest-tickets-45736912336.

owlands.

To do that, they took a page out of every bride's checklist when preparing for their big day.

There are some things old, some things
new, some things borrowed — making something Big Blue.

Who knows? Maybe the Giants could surprise the NFL and be the bride of the NFC East.

For that to happen, though, there needs to be a perfect blend of production from the familiar faces and new kids on the block.

Here are some things to watch heading into Week 1 against the Jag-uars.

SOMETHING OLD

QUARTERBACK ELI MANNING AND HIS FOOTBALL MORTALITY

At 37 years old, the greatest quarterback in Giants franchise history is on his last legs, though his career might have been shortened a few years after playing behind the worst offensive line in football last year.

It was a disastrous year for the old, wily veteran. Not only did he have to deal with constant pressure from opposing defenses that forced him to resort to a series of dink-and-dump passes, he saw Odell Beckham Jr., Brandon
Marshall, Sterling Shepard, and Dwayne Harris
all hit the injury list.

He was still able to put up 3,468 yards and 19 touchdowns despite a crumbling support system and an unceremonious benching by the inept former head coach Ben McAdoo.

Marshall and Harris
are gone but Beckham and Shepard are back to full health while second-year tight end Evan Engram continues to develop into one of the more dangerous threats at his position.

Could this be Manning's last shot at glory under center with the Giants? It might very well be if things don't work out this year.

SOME THINGS NEW

A SHINY NEW TOY NAMED SAQUON

That horrendous 3-13 record came with a consolation prize and man, is it a big one.

With the second-overall pick of the 2018 NFL Draft, the Giants selected running back Saquon Barkley, considered by many to be the best overall talent of the class.

The Penn State product has the dual-threat capabilities of a Le'Veon Bell and has even been described as a better version of Ezekiel Elliott.

He can beat an opposing defense with any running style possible, whether it's with finesse or power, and once he's in the open field, kiss him goodbye.

There should be no restrictions for Barkley come Week 1 after he was hampered for most of the preseason with hamstring issues, which will give Manning a security blanket in the backfield and the Giants a legitimate run game for the first time in quite a while.

NEW YEAR, NEW DEAL, NEW ODELL

Odell Beckham Jr. has been paid as an offseason of exponential growth culminated in a five-year extension worth $95 million.

A few months ago that might have been hard to believe considering he was threatening to hold out until he got an extension.

Since then, Beckham has done and said all the right things, attended every single team activity and is suddenly giving off leadership vibes.

That was an unheard-of concept at the beginning of the 2017 season.

Back to full health after a broken ankle robbed him of 12 games last year, Beckham will look to continue building on a young career that is already ranking him among the greats in Giants lore.

In fact, a 1,011-yard 2018 season would already put Beckham in second place on the Giants' all-time receiving yards list, behind Amani Toomer.

SOMETHING BORROWED

A NEW LINE OF PROTECTION

Gettleman made it a priority to fix the Giants' offensive line in order to provide legitimate protection for Manning while opening things up for Barkley.

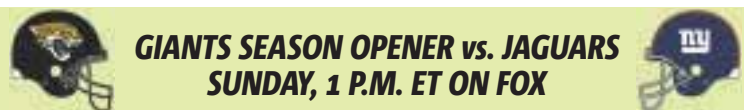

While they are unproven now, it is certainly a different-looking unit.

Gettleman brought in veteran left tackle Nate Solder, a two-time Super Bowl champion with the New England Patriots. His arrival allowed the team to move the struggling Ereck Flowers to right tackle in an attempt to resurrect his young career.

Patrick Omameh was signed shortly after, the Giants becoming his fourth team in five years in the NFL. He started 13 games with the Jacksonville Jaguars last year as they came one game short of a Super Bowl appearance.

The last piece of the puzzle came in the form of Will Hernandez, who was selected in the second round of the draft out of UTEP. The left guard is known for a mean streak, which is only going to add some much-needed tenacity to the line.

NFL WEEK 1 ODDS, PICKS: TAKE PATS

MAKE MONEY

MetroBet takes a look at NFL Week 1.

ROBERT CRISCOLA
letters@metro.us

Metro takes a look at three games for Week 1.

HOUSTON AT NEW ENGLAND (-6)

Tom Brady and company are 9-1 all-time against the Texans (7-3 against the spread).

Bill Belichick should have an easy time game-planning against Houston's lackluster defense that surrendered the most points in the NFL last year. J.J. Watt and Whitney Mercilus are back, but it remains to be seen how they'll play after last season's injury setbacks.

DeShaun Watson and his explosive offense should keep the Texans in the game, but expect the Patriots to prevail in another shootout.

The pick: Patriots -6

JACKSONVILLE (-3) AT NEW YORK GIANTS

Jacksonville, tops in the NFL in rushing last season, bring Leonard Fournette and company into town against a Big Blue defense that was 27th against the run last year. As long as the Jags can control the game on the ground, Blake Bortles won't be pressured into many mistakes under center. Run defense was shaky for Jacksonville last year (21st), but the Giants have Pro Football Focus' 26th-ranked offensive line trying to create opportunities for Saquon Barkley. Cornerback Jalen Ramsey should keep Odell Beckham Jr.

under wraps when Eli Manning drops back to throw, and Manning will likely be without Evan Engram (concussion). Look for Jacksonville, who is 9-4 ATS in their last 13 road games (per OddsShark.com), to stifle the Giants in the season opener.

The pick: Jaguars -3

NEW YORK JETS AT DETROIT (-6.5)

The Jets don't have a lot of help for Sam Darnold in terms of perimeter talent, with Robby Anderson and Jermaine Kearse being his top two targets. Isaiah Crowell is merely a decent backup ball carrier that's being asked to be a go-to guy this year. Darnold could get himself in a lot of trouble in third-and-long situations if forced to throw against cornerback Darius Slay, the NFL leader in INTs last year (8).

The pick: Lions -6.5
